Let's Build It Together

An invitation to grow your brand — beautifully, and online.

A short proposal from Robert-Jan

For the founder of Pause Interior · June 2026

A short note, first

Hej,

I'm Robert-Jan — a friend and colleague of your husband. I've spent a lot of time helping turn good ideas into real, working online businesses; most recently I built Vastelasten.app from the ground up — the strategy, the website, and the marketing that brings people to it.

When I came across Pause Interior, I felt something I don't feel often: this is a real brand. You already have the hardest part to get right — a beautiful product, genuine taste, and an honest story. That can't be bought or faked, and most businesses never find it. What it deserves now is to be seen by the people who are quietly looking for exactly this.

So this is a simple offer: I'd love to help you build it. On the next pages I've laid out how I see it, and what we could build together. Nothing here is fixed — think of it as a starting point for a good conversation.

What I see in Pause Interior

A brand built on one powerful idea the whole world is quietly craving: the pause.

Pause is the moment you walk through your front door and your shoulders drop. Natural materials, timeless design, made to last. In a world that has become loud, fast, and disposable, you're offering the opposite — calm, fewer-but-better things, a home that gives something back. That isn't just lovely. It's exactly what more and more people are searching for right now.

And three things make this the right moment to grow:

- "Swedish design" already signals calm and quality — before anyone reads a single word, your origin earns trust.
- People are investing in a calmer home — slow living and natural materials are a lasting shift, not a passing trend.
- A small brand can now reach the world directly online — if the brand and the marketing are done with care.

You've made something with real soul. My job would be to build the business around it — so it reaches the people it's meant for.

How we'd work together

The idea is simple: you stay close to what you do best — the product, the taste, the story — and I build everything around it. Over time, I hand you a system that's easy to run yourself.

You bring

- The collection & the craft
- Your taste and your eye
- Your honest story — why Pause exists
- The relationship with your customers

I build

- The strategy, structure & the plan
- A consistent brand & a professional online store
- The marketing that brings people in — and back
- Then: I teach you the system & hand it over

The one principle behind it all

We build things that compound. We don't rent attention — we earn it.

Most small brands pour money into ads and disappear the moment they stop. We'll do the opposite: each month we grow something you own — an email list, a library of beautiful content, a small community — that keeps bringing in customers for years. It's how a brand like yours grows steadily, without burning cash.

I build the machine; you give it its soul.

What we can build together

Four things, each one feeding the next:

#	We build...	So that...
1	A clear brand — your voice, colours, type, and above all the photography	everything feels like one calm, premium brand, everywhere people meet it
2	A professional online store — fast, beautiful, effortless to buy from	visitors feel the calm in seconds, and buying feels easy and safe
3	A marketing engine — email, Pinterest, Instagram, and a journal	new people keep discovering Pause, and the ones who love it come back
4	A simple weekly dashboard — just five numbers	we grow on what's really working, not on guesswork

The very first thing worth investing in

For an interior brand online, the photography is the experience — it's how someone feels your materials through a screen. So the first real step is a proper photo and video shoot of your core collection: natural light, real rooms, texture you can almost touch. The website, the emails, and every post will draw from it for years. It's the single best first investment we can make.

The plan — gentle, in four phases

Phase	When	What I do	What you do
0 • Foundation	Weeks 0–2	Lock the plan, confirm the details, set up the tools	Share your products, prices, story and any assets you have
1 • Build & launch	Months 1–3	Build the store, set up the marketing, publish your story, soft launch	The photo/video shoot; product details; welcome your first customers
2 • Grow	Months 3–9	Run the marketing engine, do more of what works, add a styling service	Create products & content in your voice; do what you love
3 • You take the wheel	Months 9–18	Open new channels; then document & teach you the system	Run the day-to-day of the brand you now fully own

The first 90 days, simply

- 1 Month 1. Photograph the collection, build the store, set up the marketing — and a soft launch to a warm circle of first customers.
- 2 Month 2. A real launch with your story at the heart of it, and the content engine switched on.
- 3 Month 3. Do more of what's working, smooth out the rest, and start growing steadily.

My guiding principle: do less, better, sooner. We'll launch something small and excellent — and let it grow — rather than something big and average.

If this feels right

All I'd need to turn this into a real, specific plan is a relaxed conversation and a few answers:

- ☐ Your story — why you started Pause, and what "pause" means to you
- ☐ Your collection — the pieces, materials, and prices
- ☐ How it's made — your own designs, curated pieces, or a mix
- ☐ Where you'd love to sell — Sweden, the Nordics, Europe, wider
- ☐ What you already have — logo, photos, your current website
- ☐ Your hopes for the first year — and how much time you'd like to give it

So here's my suggestion for a first step: let's have a relaxed call. You tell me the story behind Pause, I'll listen, and together we'll shape the plan — at your pace, with no pressure at all.

Whatever you decide, I genuinely admire what you've created. It deserves to be seen — and I'd be glad to help make that happen.

Warmly,
Robert-Jan

This is a friendly proposal, not a contract — a starting point for a conversation. Everything in it is shaped around the spirit of Pause Interior: Swedish interior, natural materials, timeless design, and the feeling of coming home. · Pause Interior — Let's Build It Together · June 2026
